Family Council Releases Arkansas Voter's Guide for Primary Election

Family Council has released the Arkansas Voter's Guide for this year's primary election taking place on May 22. Democratic and Republican candidates running for their party's nomination to either the Arkansas Legislature or U.S. Congress are featured. The Arkansas Voter's Guide is available in print and online at ArkansasVotersGuide.com.

Family Council President Cox Jerry said: "This year, in addition to our print and online versions of the guide, we are excited to launch our first smart phone app. Voters with a phone running Google's Android software can now get candidate information on the go in a simple, easy-to-use format. This is just another unique way that we're working to provide our voter's guide to as many people as possible."

Voters will have the opportunity again this year to watch video interviews of many candidates running to represent Arkansas in the U.S. Congress. These videos provide much deeper insight into the personalities and policy positions of the candidates, and the Arkansas Voter's Guide is the only guide in the state offering this kind of candidate access.

"For over 20 years, we've published the Arkansas Voter's Guide every election year as a service to voters and candidates alike. Our non-partisan guide allows voters to see where candidates really stand on the issues, and it allows candidates a free platform to tell voters what they believe," said Cox.
