Expressing Faith through Religious Freedom in Arkansas Public Schools

MAKING THE MOST OF LEGAL OPPORTUNITIES

Mission: To equip and inspire public school students to demonstrate and participate in their faith at school in a manner that is consistent with state law, court rulings, and time-honored traditions.

Goals:

1. To inform students, educators, and members of the community about opportunities designated by Arkansas law or tradition for students to express their faith at school.
2. To provide suggestions and resources about how students can demonstrate and participate in their faith at times designated by state law or tradition.
3. To provide those who are interested in seeing religious faith expressed at school with a list of organizations that can assist them.
4. To help make public school a place where religious freedom is respected and expressions of faith are welcomed and encouraged.

FAMILY COUNCIL

Dear Friends,

Students do not surrender their freedom of religion simply because they walk through the doorway of a public school building. Students can legally express their faith wherever they are, including at school. We are grateful for special religious observances at school like See You at the Pole, Bring Your Bible to School Day, laws that allow the academic study of the Bible, Released Time for off-campus religious instruction, designated days to pray for our schools, and for times when students are free to pray such as during the moment of silence each school day.

This toolkit is not intended to be a comprehensive guide for how students can express their faith in every situation at school. There are many qualified, national legal-advocacy organizations that have already published excellent guidelines and interpretations of court rulings regarding religious freedom at school. Links to their resources can be found at the back of this toolkit.

Rather, this toolkit is Arkansas-specific. Many people are unaware that in recent years the Arkansas Legislature has passed laws affirming religious freedom at school. In addition, traditional practices like See You at the Pole have become the norm at many Arkansas schools. Our goal is to draw attention to these laws and traditional practices and help students know how to take full advantage of these opportunities.

Many people have complained about court rulings banning school prayers and Bible reading. However, there is still broad legal protection for the free exercise of religion at school. Few Arkansas families are aware of how to help their students fully exercise the religious freedoms that the courts and state laws allow and encourage. We hope you and the students in your school will use this guide to facilitate greater participation in activities like:

- The Daily One Minute of Silence:
- Display of “In God We Trust” Motto
- See You at the Pole
- Bring Your Bible to School Day
- Annual Day of Prayer for Arkansas Students
- Reading or Displaying Historical Religious Quotes or Documents
- Academic Study of the Bible Courses in Public School
- National Day of Prayer
- Released Time for Religious Instruction

Thank you, and may God bless you.

Sincerely,

Jerry Cox
President

DAILY
ONE MINUTE OF SILENCE

Daily One Minute of Silence

DESCRIPTION

In 2021, the Arkansas Legislature passed Act 959 requiring that public schools students observe one minute of silence each school day. Most states have passed laws pertaining to moments of silence at school.

DATE/TIME

A minute of silence is observed each day following the Pledge of Allegiance. A minute of silence is also required after the Pledge of Allegiance during after-school assemblies and at sporting events.

PURPOSE

To provide one minute for students to be silent.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

During the one minute of silence each student may reflect, pray, meditate, or engage in any other silent activity that is not likely to interfere with or distract other students.

WHAT PEOPLE CAN DO

- Be sure your local public school is following state law by observing one minute of silence during the first class of the school day, immediately after the Pledge of Allegiance.
- Students can get together and make a list of things to pray for, and they can share that list with other students so everyone can silently pray for the same requests during the moment of silence.
- For publicly known community situations, students can share online and urge others to pray for those situations during the moment of silence.
- Remember that students can get together and pray silently or aloud at school at any time when students have free time to gather and speak and converse about anything else.
- Public school educators can make a copy of the law and distribute it in print, by email, or online, and post it on the school's website to remind everyone that silent prayer is one of the legal options for every student during the moment of silence.
- Any parent can make a copy of the law mandating a minute of silence and distribute it to raise awareness in the community.
- A teacher can post the law on their classroom bulletin board to encourage meaningful participation in the minute of silence by students.
- Since the law also requires one minute of silence after the Pledge of Allegiance at school sporting events, the athletes on the team could make a prayer list and share it with the student body.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT THE DAILY MINUTE OF SILENCE

1. Question: Does this law require a minute of silence in private schools or home schools?

Answer: No. The law only applies to public schools.

2. Question: Does the law force students to pray during the minute of silence?

Answer: No. The law says that the student may reflect, pray, meditate, or engage in any other silent activity that does not distract other students.

3. Question: Does this law force teachers or school administrators to do anything?

Answer: Yes. The teacher and school administrators must ensure that students, during the first period of the day, remain silent for one minute immediately following the Pledge of Allegiance.

4. Question: Does the law require a minute of silence at any other time at school?

Answer: Yes. In addition to requiring a minute of silence after the Pledge of Allegiance during the first class of the day, a minute of silence is also required after the Pledge of Allegiance during after-school assemblies and at sporting events.

5. Question: Isn't this just a way to get prayer into public schools?

Answer: Prayer is already in every public school. Students can already pray silently at school anytime they choose. Most people would agree that it is good when a person quietly reflects, meditates, or prays in whatever way they choose.

6. Question: Can students agree to pray during the moment of silence or share a list of what to pray for?

Answer: Yes. Students can share prayer lists with one another on paper, online, or verbally at school.

7. Question: Can teachers or administrators tell students to pray or tell them what to pray for?

Answer: No.

8. Question: Doesn't this violate the separation of church and state?

Answer: No. Requiring students to be silent for one minute does not constitute state sponsorship of any religious activity.

1 (C) Each public school teacher or other public school
2 employee in charge of students during the period in which the Pledge of

DISPLAY OF "IN GOD

MOTTO

Display of “In God We Trust” Motto

DESCRIPTION

In 2021 the Arkansas Legislature passed Act 410, a law requiring the display of the National Motto, “In God We Trust,” in every public school classroom and in every public school library if funds are donated for the purchase of the posters or if the posters themselves are donated.

DATE/TIME

Displayed permanently in every classroom and library.

PURPOSE

To familiarize students with the motto of the United States of America, “In God We Trust.”

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

The posting of the motto of the United States is also allowed under other laws that allow the posting of historical documents that may have a religious reference.

WHAT PEOPLE CAN DO

- See if your public school has a framed copy of the National Motto, “In God We Trust,” in every classroom and library. If not, find out why.
- Donate “In God We Trust” posters or donate enough money to the school so they can purchase them. Schools must display the posters in every classroom if the posters are donated or enough money is donated for the school to buy them.
- Organize a group of citizens who will go to all the public schools in your area and ensure that they have enough posters to place one in every classroom. Buy a large quantity of posters, frame them, and give them to the school for every classroom.
- A church, civic club, or a group of individuals can purchase the posters in large quantities, frame them, and have them ready for display. Once schools know where to get free posters, many may call.
- Teachers can discuss the “In God We Trust” poster with their students.
- Students can do research and write essays about the national motto.
- There is no law that prevents a school from purchasing and displaying an “In God We Trust” sign, poster, or banner that is much larger than the framed posters. One could be displayed in the auditorium, gym or athletic field. The motto could be on every school bus or on the school’s stationery.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT DISPLAYING THE NATIONAL MOTTO IN PUBLIC SCHOOL CLASSROOMS

1. Question: What does this law require?

Answer: The national motto must be displayed in every K–12 classroom and library as well as in classrooms in public colleges and universities if the posters have been donated. This law does not require the posting of the national motto unless a copy of it meets the size requirement set by law, it has been donated, or funds have been given for the school to purchase copies.

2. Question: Doesn't this violate the separation of church and state?

Answer: No. This is a motto, not a religion. This is the same motto that is on all money minted by the United States Government.

3. Question: What if this offends students or teachers who don't believe in God?

Answer: What they believe does not change the motto of the United States.

4. Question: What if a school refuses to allow the posting of the National Motto?

Answer: They are in violation of state law. The law says that if the posters are donated, the school must display them. Having the school attorney or local prosecutor explain the law to school officials would be helpful.

SEE YOU
AT THE POLE

See You at the Pole

DESCRIPTION

See You at the Pole is a time of prayer on the fourth Wednesday of September when students meet at their school flagpole before school to lift up their friends, families, teachers, school, and nation to God. It is student-initiated, student-organized, and student-led.

DATE/TIME

Fourth Wednesday of September each year.

PURPOSE

Prayer.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

The first nationwide See You at the Pole gatherings were held in 1991. This has been an annual event since then. Today, more than 3 million students from 20 different countries take part in See You at the Pole.

WHAT PEOPLE CAN DO

- Find out if there is any existing See You at the Pole effort going on at your school.
- Let school officials know that you are planning to have a See You at the Pole event before school.
- If they have concerns, download helpful materials from the See You at the Pole website to let them review it.
- Don't expect the event to be spontaneous. Leadership is needed, and a plan with delegated responsibilities will make the event run smoothly for attendees.
- Student-leaders and adults can gather and plan the event.
- Fellowship of Christian Athletes and other religious groups on campus may be able to help.
- Hold a pre-pole rally for student and adult leaders to meet with students and plan the See You at the Pole Event.
- The event can include students from more than one school.
- Plan, prepare, publicize, and pray for the event.
- See You at the Pole has a national office with an excellent website. Go to the See You at the Pole website and download the helpful information. See their contact information on the next page.

LEGAL HELP

The See You at the Pole Website has a list of legal advocacy organizations that will help clarify that students have the right to pray before school on their school campuses.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

1. Question: Isn't this just a backdoor way to bring Christianity into a public school?

Answer: The purpose of See You at the Pole is for students to pray. Christian students and their faith are already in every public school. This event allows them to practice their faith lawfully at school. The courts have affirmed over and over again that voluntary, student-led prayer is protected under the U.S. Constitution.

2. Question: What if school officials object?

Answer: Leave the campus and hold the event elsewhere. Later there will be time to contact one or more national organizations with lawyers who can persuade school officials to allow student-led religious activities at the school.

The courts have affirmed over and over again that voluntary, student-led prayer is protected under the U.S. Constitution.

3. Question: Can adults help students plan See You at the Pole?

Answer: Yes. Adults can help student leaders plan, but only students should lead the actual event.

4. Question: Wouldn't it be best for Christian students to avoid being too visible and outspoken at school since this might motivate Satan worshipers, religious cults, and non-Christian groups to ask for the same privileges?

Answer: Non-Christians and even Satan worshipers already have the constitutional right to practice their religious faiths at school the same as Christians. Courts in some states have allowed Satan clubs on campus. It makes little sense for Christians to refrain from practicing their faith out of concern that it might stir up Satan worshipers, cults, or non-Christian religions.

HOLY

BRING YOUR BIBLE
TO SCHOOL
DAY

Bring Your Bible to School Day

DESCRIPTION

Bring Your Bible to School Day began in 2014 by Focus on the Family. The event encourages students to bring a Bible with them to school. This is a student initiated event that enables them to display their faith by carrying their Bible to school.

DATE/TIME

The first Thursday in October of each year.

PURPOSE

To enable students to exercise their religious freedom by demonstrating their faith in God through carrying and, if they choose, reading and discussing the Bible at school.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Many would say that the Bible is the greatest book of all time. As long as schools allow students to carry books and read them, they can carry and read the Bible. This is growing in popularity, with over 877,000 students and 5,000 churches taking part nationwide each year.

WHAT PEOPLE CAN DO

- The main thing for students to do is simply bring their Bible to school.
- Work with your school administrators and school board to have Bring your Bible to School Day put on the school calendar and announced to students and teachers ahead of time.
- Work with the faculty sponsor of faith-based groups that are already on campus. See if the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and other groups will help promote Bring Your Bible to School Day.
- Promote Bring your Bible to School Day in your church, especially with youth and children's ministries. Have your youth leader work with students to prepare them for the day.
- Get together with parents of other students and make a plan for using Bring Your Bible to School Day as a time for them to reach out to other students about what the Bible says.
- Have your student carry an extra Bible or New Testament with them to school so they can give it away.
- Purchase and donate Bibles to students who may want to share Bibles with others.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT BRING YOUR BIBLE TO SCHOOL DAY

1. Question: Since the Bible is a religious text, doesn't bringing it to a public school violate the separation of church and state?

Answer: No. This is because the Bible is a book. As long as your child's school allows students to bring books of their own choosing to school, they can bring a religious text like the Bible to school.

2. Question: Even if a student is allowed to carry a Bible with them to school, won't reading it and discussing it with other students be a violation of the separation of church and state?

Answer: No. Once again, the Bible is a book. As long as the school allows students to carry books of their choosing to school and there are times during the day when students can discuss items of their choosing, they can read and discuss the Bible.

3. Question: What if school officials tell a student that they cannot carry a Bible to school or they prohibit the student from reading or discussing it?

Answer: Hopefully the school attorney can persuade the school to respect the religious rights of students. If not, the Alliance Defending Freedom and First Liberty listed under Helpful Contacts can help with legal advice.

4. Question: Can adults outside the school be involved in Bring Your Bible to School Day?

Answer: Yes. Anyone from outside the school can be involved in all aspects of Bring Your Bible to School Day, except they cannot go to the school and participate on the campus during school hours. They can promote it, organize students to participate, work with school officials, and even furnish students with Bibles to carry.

5. Question: Can school personnel stop students from reading a Bible silently or aloud at school?

Answer: If it is at a time when the student is free to read other material of their choosing, they can read the Bible. If the student is free to read other material of their choosing aloud, they can read the Bible aloud.

6. Question: Can students talk to other students about the Bible at school?

Answer: If it is at a time when students are allowed to discuss topics of their choosing with other students, they can discuss the Bible.

7. Question: Can parents or leaders at church teach students how to discuss the Bible and other spiritual matters with students at school?

Answer: Yes. The student can converse with other students about spiritual matters as long as it is at a time when the school allows students to discuss matters of their own choosing.

8. Question: Can a child in kindergarten or first grade bring a Bible to school?

Answer: Yes. If the school allows children to bring other books of their choosing, they can bring a Bible or Bible storybook. It may be more practical for younger children to carry a smaller, child-sized text such as a New Testament or Bible storybook for children.

9. Question: What if Bible study groups or prayer groups or other gatherings begin as a result of Bring Your Bible to School Day?

Answer: These are permitted at school as long as they are student-led and as long as gatherings are held at a time when other groups would be allowed to meet.

10. Question: Can the school officially promote Bring Your Bible to School Day?

Answer: Yes. For example, If the school can promote Earth Day, Dictionary Day, Black History Month, Pride Month, or World Poetry Day, they can promote Bring Your Bible to School Day.

11. Question: Can a student bring a Koran or other religious text to school, read it, and discuss it with other students?

Answer: Yes. As long as the school allows students to bring books of their choosing to school, they can bring a Koran or other religious text and discuss it with other students.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT A DAY OF PRAYER FOR ARKANSAS STUDENTS

1. Question: Does the law establishing a day of prayer for students mandate anything?

Answer: The only mandate in the law is for the governor to annually proclaim the last Wednesday in September as “A Day of Prayer for Arkansas Students.” The Department of Education is required to notify all public schools about the day.

2. Question: Does the day of prayer apply to anything more than students in public school?

Answer: Yes, it applies to all students no matter where they attend school. In addition, it applies to all teachers, administrators, and all types of schools.

3. Question: Does the law only apply to Christians praying for students and schools?

Answer: No, the law does not favor any particular religion or way of praying.

4. Question: Do schools have to allow anyone to come on campus and pray?

Answer: No. Rules on campus visitors still apply.

5. Question: Isn't this just a way to promote Christianity at school?

Answer: Students are free to promote this proclamation at school the same as anything else the Governor proclaims. It designates a particular day for people to pray for students, their schools and educators without mandating anything for schools or students.

6. Question: What if the ACLU or Freedom from Religion Foundation, or non-Christian parents object to the day of prayer?

Answer: Their objections would not have any merit. Even these individuals and groups agree that prayer in religious gatherings is a right. The law says nothing about praying at the school. Rather, this is a proclamation about prayer for the school and its students and teachers. This day of prayer is to be observed and practiced in local houses of worship, people's homes, and in other places where people of faith gather. No one is being coerced to pray, and no public funds are being used to observe the Day of Prayer for Students.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT THE DISPLAY OR READING OF DOCUMENTS OF AMERICAN HISTORY

1. Question: Does this law require anyone to do anything?

Answer: Local school boards must allow teachers or administrators to read or post historical documents, and the board cannot censor the content of these documents based on religious references. In addition, the Department of Education is required to distribute a copy of the law to every school board member in the state.

2. Question: What if the content of the document or a quote is offensive to students or it violates community standards?

Answer: The law enumerates a long list of historical documents like the Bill of Rights and the Gettysburg Address. In addition it allows speeches and other documents that have a historical significance relating to the founding of the United States or Arkansas. This means that the quote must be of historical significance. The best practice, considering current U.S. Supreme Court case law, would be to ensure a diversity of quotes with historical significance in any display; quotes in posters and displays should not be excerpts with solely religious references.

3. Question: Isn't this just a way to get Christianity into public schools?

Answer: No. This is an effort to keep schools from censoring any historical document or speech with a religious reference. This is an effort to get accurate American History taught in our schools. What better way to inform students about what leading figures in history thought and why they acted in certain ways than to read first-hand and understand what they had to say! It is historically significant to know how religion and faith affected the actions of important figures in American or Arkansas history.

4. Question: Doesn't this violate the separation of church and state?

Answer: No. Reading a religious quote by a historical figure in no way constitutes state promoted religion. The quote speaks for itself. Denying a student the right to read a religious quote violates free speech and a number of other constitutional rights.

Stricken language would be deleted from and underlined language would be added to the law as it existed prior to this session of the General Assembly.

ACADEMIC STUDY OF THE BIBLE AT SCHOOL

Academic Study of the Bible at School

DESCRIPTION

In 2013 the Arkansas Legislature affirmed the right of public schools to offer courses in the academic study of the Bible. In 2019, they expanded this law by directing the Department of Education to create a Bible course for high school credit. The course must consist of a nonsectarian, nonreligious academic study of the Bible and its influence on literature, art, music, culture, and politics.

DATE/TIME

At any grade level during any class period at a public school.

PURPOSE

- To equip students with literary forms and symbols in the Bible that are constantly referred to in art, music, and literature.
- To give the student an understanding of the influence of the Bible on history, law, community, and cultural life.
- To give insight into the founding fathers' worldviews taken from the Bible promoting human rights, women's rights, social justice, and so on.
- To provide knowledge of Middle-Eastern history (i.e. Jewish and Arab), conflicts, geography, and religions.
- To teach students how to learn and use multiple, complex skills.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Even without a law, schools have the Constitutional right to offer a study of the Bible as an academic course. The U.S. Supreme Court's 1963 Abington v. Schempp decision says that public schools can teach about the Bible and about religion in an objective, academic context.

“It might well be said that one's education is not complete without a study of comparative religion or the history of religion and its relationship to the advancement of civilization. It certainly may be said that the Bible is worthy of study for its literary and historic qualities. Nothing we have said here indicates that such study of the Bible or of religion, when presented objectively as part of a secular program of education, may not be effected consistently with the First Amendment.”

—Sch. Dist. of Abington Twp., Pa. v. Schempp, 374 U.S. 203, 225 (1963).

WHAT PEOPLE CAN DO

- See if your public school has an academic study of the Bible course. If it does, do what you can to make it as good as possible.
- Organize a group of parents who support an academic study of the Bible course who can appeal to your local school superintendent and school board to begin a Bible study course at your school.
- Do your research into the various academic study of the Bible courses that are available. See the helpful resources below.
- Be prepared to make your case before the superintendent, curriculum committee, or the school board.

Finding Common Ground—A First Amendment Guide to Religion and Public Education by Charles C. Haynes.

The Bible in Public Schools

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT THE ACADEMIC STUDY OF THE BIBLE IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

1. Question: Is this legal? What about the separation of church and state?

Answer: The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in Abington vs. Schempp that the study of the Bible or of religion when presented objectively as a part of a secular public school program is legal.

2. Question: What if the course fails to meet our expectations?

Answer: It may fall short of expectations, but that does not mean it is not helpful. After all, this may be the only time some students read the Bible.

3. Question: What if my superintendent or school board refuse to offer an academic study of the Bible course?

Answer: Your response can be the same as any other time they refuse to do something else you ask them to do. Bringing public opinion and public pressure to bear can change things. In addition, you will have the opportunity to vote on the members of your local school board.

4. Question: What if an unqualified teacher is hired to teach the academic study of the Bible?

Answer: Your response should be the same if an unqualified superintendent or principal was hired or if an unqualified teacher was teaching English. You do what you can do to help the teacher be qualified. If this fails, you can ask the school to reassign the teacher. Since the academic study of the Bible is an elective, parents can withhold their children from the course.

5. Question: What if the teacher teaches something that is untrue about the Bible?

Answer: The law and court rulings help prevent the course from teaching whether the Bible is true or not. Any teacher who strays over into religious doctrines or promoting particular interpretations of Biblical texts is breaking the law. This is why the selection of a fair and balanced Bible course curriculum is so important. If the teacher follows the curriculum, they should be able to avoid controversy.

6. Question: Is the academic study of the Bible at school really worth it?

Answer: Yes. This may be the only time some students read the Bible. This may be the only time they carry a Bible with them. Being exposed to the time-honored principles in the Bible can be life-changing for some students. This exposure to the Bible may prompt them to remember what it says, to read it on their own, or discuss it with others.

7. Question: How can we find a good academic study of the Bible curriculum?

Answer: There may be several good curriculums available. The most widely used academic study of the Bible curriculum is produced by The National Council on Bible Curriculum in Public Schools.

8. Question: What if the school has no teachers qualified to teach the course?

Answer: A teacher could be hired part time from the community. In some cases there may be qualified individuals in the community who can volunteer to teach the class.

ACADEMIC STUDY OF THE BIBLE—ONE SEMESTER

Academic Study of the Bible is a one-semester English elective course that is designed to strengthen students' understanding of the Bible and its impact upon American culture. This nonsectarian, nonreligious, academic course integrates the study of the Bible as a piece of literature with art, music, literature, culture, and politics in order to understand the relationships between the Bible, society, and culture. As an English Language Arts elective, it is expected that students will develop and apply literacy skills of reading, writing, speaking, and listening. The Academic Study of the Bible course does not need Arkansas Department of Education approval.

Pursuant to ACA § 6-16-145, an academic study of the Bible course offered by a public school or school district shall:

1. Be taught in an objective and nondevotional manner with no attempt made to indoctrinate students as to either the truth or falsity of the biblical materials or texts from other religious or cultural traditions;
2. Not include teachings of religious doctrine or sectarian interpretations of the Bible or of texts from other religious or cultural traditions; and
3. Not disparage or encourage a commitment to a set of religious beliefs.

NATIONAL DAY OF PRAYER

National Day of Prayer

DESCRIPTION

Secure passage of a school board resolution recognizing the first Thursday in May as the National Day of Prayer, and directing the superintendent to inform all school district personnel to respect students' and staff's observance of the National Day of Prayer in accordance with the Constitutions of the United States and the State of Arkansas, as well as state law.

DATE/TIME

The first Thursday in May of each year.

PURPOSE

To encourage the observance of the National Day of Prayer at public schools.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

In 2022, the school board of Miami-Dade County, Florida passed a resolution in support of the National Day of Prayer. The Broward County, Florida, school board passed a similar resolution in 2023. For decades, students and teachers in schools across the nation have informally observed the National Day of Prayer. In most cases, students, teachers, and others have voluntarily gathered to pray outside before the beginning of the school day. These gatherings have been student-led. Since 1952, every U.S. President has proclaimed the first Thursday in May as the National Day of Prayer.

WHAT PEOPLE CAN DO

- Make a plan for your local school to observe the National Day of Prayer the first Thursday in May.
- Talk to faculty sponsors of existing faith-based clubs that may already be established at your school, and see if they would like to be involved. These could be: the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, organizers of See You at the Pole, a Bible club, Young Life, or others.
- Ask your local school board to pass a resolution directing your local superintendent to direct all school personnel to respect student or staff observance of the National Day of Prayer.
- If your school district has endorsed Pride events, Earth Day, or other days, you should be able to use these as a basis for the school board supporting the National Day of Prayer, a presidential proclamation.
- Create a flier promoting school participation in the National Day of Prayer.
- Work with churches and youth groups to promote the observance at the school.
- The observance could be held on campus before the beginning of the school day.
- The school could allow those who want to pray to attend a special voluntary assembly where prayers are led by students.
- If your schools participate in See You at the Pole, this could be promoted and conducted in much the same way.
- For help with writing a school board resolution, contact a local attorney, the attorney for the school, or Family Council.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT OBSERVING THE NATIONAL DAY OF PRAYER AT SCHOOL

1. Question: Can a school promote the National Day of Prayer?

Answer: Yes. The National Day of Prayer is a proclamation by the President of the United States. Public schools are free to promote this or any other official proclamation.

2. Question: How can a public school promote the President’s proclamation for a National Day of Prayer?

Answer: They can post the proclamation online. They can make copies and pass them out to students. They can announce any student-led activities associated with observance of the National Day of Prayer.

The National Day of Prayer is a proclamation by the President of the United States. Public schools are free to promote this or any other official proclamation.

They can allot time for students to voluntarily participate in the National Day of Prayer. They can allot time for staff members to participate separately. The school board can pass a resolution or other measures supporting the National Day of Prayer.

3. Question: What if the school officials or the school board oppose student participation in the National Day of Prayer?

Answer: If the board and school officials won’t cooperate, parents and community members may wish to consider alternate venues. Instead of gathering at the school, students, parents, and teachers can assemble off campus before school or during the evening and hold an event together. Parents and community members could even join in.

RELEASED TIME FOR RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION

Released Time for Religious Instruction

DESCRIPTION

Released Time is a program in which—with parental approval—public schools release students for part of the school day to attend off-site religious instruction offered by a private sponsoring group.

DATE/TIME

Determined by the school and the private sponsoring group, but one hour per week per student is common.

PURPOSE

To recognize and reinforce the constitutionally protected right of parents to direct the religious education of their children.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Schools do not have to let students leave campus for religious instruction, but they may do so. It is currently legal for Arkansas schools to offer released time for students to attend off-site religious instruction. The U.S. Supreme Court's 1952 Zorach v. Clauson decision affirms this right.

The 1952 Zorach v. Clauson ruling laid out three simple guidelines of compliance for Released Time Education programs. They are:

1. No public funds can be used for the program. It must be privately funded by the organization putting it on or other donors.
2. Released Time programs cannot take place on school property
3. Student participation must be voluntary, with written parental consent

WHAT PEOPLE CAN DO

- Work with national groups like School Ministries to learn about Released Time and how you can get a program started in your community.
- Learn about Released Time, and share the concept with people in your church and community.
- Form a group of people who are willing to establish a religious instruction program for students to attend.
- Persuade your local school officials to allow released time for off-site religious instruction.
 - School officials are not required to allow released time education programs. A private group or organization that wishes to start a new program should visit with school officials to determine who can authorize a released time program. That could be the superintendent, the principal, or the school board. Be prepared to address each.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT RELEASED TIME RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION

- 1. Question: Do schools have to allow students to leave campus for religious instruction?

Answer: No. The U.S. Supreme Court says that schools may offer this. They do not have to allow students to participate.
- 2. Question: Is it legal for a student to leave public school during the day for the purpose of receiving religious instruction away from the school?

Answer: Yes. It is legal in all 50 states. Some states have taken the extra step of affirming this right in state law.
- 3. Question: What are the qualifications for a released time program to be constitutional?

Answer: Religious instruction must take place off school grounds. Student attendance is voluntary and with parental consent. It must be privately funded. No taxpayer funds can be used.
- 4. Question: Who conducts these religious instruction classes?

Answer: Anyone can conduct the classes, but they are typically sponsored and conducted by churches or community organizations. It is up to the parents to determine if the course is appropriate for their child.
- 5. Question: Do those who conduct the religious instruction classes for the students have to create their own curriculum?

Answer: No. Excellent curriculum resources are available from School Ministries and elsewhere. However, churches or others are free to create their own curriculum and studies as they choose.
- 6. Question: What if the religious instruction offered to the students is flawed?

Answer: It is the responsibility of parents to monitor the content and manner of their child's religious instruction. The classes are voluntary. Parents can remove their child at any time of their choosing. It is also the responsibility of any sponsoring organization or those who are funding it to ensure its integrity.
- 7. Question: Could a cult or abnormal religious group start a religious instruction program and students from the school voluntarily participate?

Answer: Yes, but no one would have to participate. Experiences in other states indicate that while cult groups are cause for concern, they have not been a problem—mainly because few if any parents allow their child to participate. These types of programs don't usually last long due to the lack of participation and funding.

RELIGIOUS VIEWPOINT ANTI
ACT

Religious Viewpoint Antidiscrimination Act

Act 788 of 2023 The Religious Viewpoint Antidiscrimination Act is a law that protects a public school students' religious viewpoint at school.

The law states that a public school must treat a student that expresses their religious viewpoint (as long as it is on a permissible subject) the same as a student that expresses a secular viewpoint. A public school cannot discriminate against a public school student based on their religious viewpoint.

To help ensure this is followed, Act 788 requires every public school district in Arkansas to adopt a policy ensuring that their school does not discriminate against a student's religious viewpoint. The policy must be clear that it is not sponsoring or promoting the religious viewpoint of a student.

The law requires that certain criteria be in the school policy, though it is not limited to these things. The policy must include:

1. The establishment of a limited public forum for public school student speakers at all public school events where a student may speak publicly.
 - a. A student's religious viewpoint shall not be excluded from the limited public forum.
 - b. The school cannot exclude the student from the limited public forum.
 - i. This section prevents discrimination of a student that wants to participate in a public forum and express a religious viewpoint.
2. The school must adopt a method, based solely on neutral criteria, for selecting public school speakers at school events, including graduations.
 - a. The school must have procedures in the policy that ensures the speaker doesn't engage in obscene, vulgar, offensively lewd, or indecent speech.
 - b. It must be stated clearly that the views expressed by the student speaker's speech does not reflect the school's position.

Public school students may express their religious viewpoint in the following ways at their public school:

1. Homework
2. Classwork
3. Artwork; and
4. Any other written or oral assignments.

Student assignments shall only be graded and judged based on regular academic standards of substance and relevance, and other conventional, pedagogical topics identified by the school district.

The public school student shall NOT be penalized or rewarded solely based on religious content of his or her school work assignments.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT THE RELIGIOUS VIEWPOINT ANTIDISCRIMINATION ACT

1. Question: Is this legal? What about the separation of church and state?

Answer: Yes, it is legal. According to the U.S. Supreme Court ruling in Tinker v. Des Moines, neither teachers nor students, “shed their constitutional rights to freedom of speech or expression at the schoolhouse gate.” The First Amendment is the safeguard for students’ religious beliefs and freedom of expression. It is the duty of a school district to remain neutral and accommodate students’ religious beliefs.

2. Question: Isn’t this just a way to get Christianity into public schools?

Answer: No. This is an effort to keep schools from censoring or discriminating against the religious speech, viewpoints, and expression through school assignments of a public school student.

*According to the U.S. Supreme Court ruling in Tinker v. Des Moines teachers nor students, “shed their constitutional rights to freedom of speech or expression at the schoolhouse gate.”
The First Amendment is the safeguard for students’ religious beliefs and freedom of expression.*

3. Question: Does this law require anyone to do anything?

Answer: The law does require school districts to adopt policies to ensure the school is following the law accurately.

4. Question: Wouldn’t it be best for Christian students to avoid being too visible and outspoken at school since this might motivate Satan worshipers, religious cults, and non-Christian groups to ask for the same privileges?

Answer: Non-Christians and even Satan worshipers already have the constitutional right to practice their religious faiths at school the same as Christians. Courts in some states have allowed Satan clubs on campus. It makes little sense for Christians to refrain from practicing their faith out of concern that it might stir up Satan worshipers, cults, or non-Christian religions.

Conclusion

While nothing in this document should be regarded as legal advice, it is clear by observation and common knowledge that various public schools around the country are legally exercising religious freedom by implementing some or possibly all of the activities covered here. It is always best to consult with national legal advocacy organizations that specialize in navigating religious issues at school if you have any doubt about the constitutionality of any religious activity at your school.

Court rulings against religious practice at school and the threat of legal action by anti-Christian organizations like the ACLU and the Freedom From Religion Foundation should no longer be an excuse for people of faith giving up on advancing religious freedom and the free exercise of religion in public schools. Often, these organizations specialize in empty threats that deprive students of exercising their First Amendment rights.

Over the years, the courts have affirmed the right of students to express their faith at school. In addition, the Arkansas Legislature has passed laws that affirm these religious freedoms. For example, the study of the Bible as an academic course is legal in every public school. The reading and posting of religious quotes of historical figures, the day of prayer for students, and the mandatory minute of silence at the beginning of the school day are all clearly spelled out.

It is clear that students have the right to bring their Bible to school, pray around the flagpole, form religious clubs, and engage voluntarily in activities that align with their faith. Students can give other students a Bible or other religious text. They can discuss their faith with others. They can share their faith in Christ with other students during free time. It is even legal for schools to allow students to leave campus for religious instruction at a church or elsewhere during the school day.

Teachers and administrators can also do much more to support students' religious freedom at school. For example, a history teacher could read various religious quotes of historical figures in class any time. A science teacher can teach and discuss the various theories of creation, including the biblical account. An art teacher can show and discuss various religiously themed paintings and other works of art. A music teacher can include religiously themed songs in a choir performance. A government teacher can discuss the ways our secular government reflects the same patterns as principles set forth in the Judeo-Christian heritage. A literature teacher can have students read portions of the New Testament as a reading assignment. A librarian can purchase religiously themed books or subscribe to religious publications and include them in the library's collection. A principal or superintendent could work with churches and community organizations to place "In God We Trust" posters in every classroom as permitted by Arkansas law. A local school board can pass a resolution declaring the school to be a friendly and welcoming place for all religious faiths.

Parents and church leaders can work with students to help them plan and conduct religious activities at school the same as they can help with activities like the prom, a junior high dance, a fall festival, or talent show.

Unfortunately, groups like the ACLU have created a narrative that religious faith is illegal at school. Sadly, some Christians believe this myth. This widespread misunderstanding and lack of information on how much faith can be expressed at school has created a "faith desert" at many of our schools where Pride Month, Earth Day, and Critical Theory are celebrated and faith in God is absent or maligned.

Faith will continue to be absent from public schools until people of faith take action and exercise their religious freedom at school.
